

Dr. Azevedo's Biographical Sketch

Dr. Mario J. Azevedo holds a Ph.D. in History from Duke University, an M.P.H. in Epidemiology from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, an M.A. in History from American University, a certificate in Epidemiology from the University of Michigan, and further training in Epidemiology from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Key areas of professional interests include: infectious diseases tropical diseases (malaria, trypanosomiasis, onchocerciasis, leprosy), health in the developing world, history of Africa (social, political), history of Francophone Africa and southern Africa health in colonial Africa, and colonialism and the spread of communicable diseases.